Brownrigg
Jorge Perez Martin set up his decorative antiques business in West Sussex in 1999. Having moved to the UK from his native Spain a few years earlier, he was rapidly seduced by the life of an English antiques dealer. He and his partner, David Gibson, moved the business to Tetbury in 2011 and have consistently and passionately developed the Brownrigg business and name to create this magnetic source of interior inspiration for interior designers and private clients alike. For the team at Brownrigg, 'it's all about the mix', scanning countries and centuries to help their clients create and finish spaces designed to be lived in and cherished.

Long Street Antiques
Long Street Antiques is fittingly at home in a beautiful Georgian building at 14, Long Street—a well-established Tetbury and Cotswold destination for more than 30 years. The new owners have, over the past three years, gradually repositioned the shop to offer a more decorative selection of antiques, including pieces from France, Italy, Sweden and Spain. The result is an ever-changing and eclectic mix to suit every style and pocket. As one customer so kindly put it: 'I love this place. I can find anything, from a small piece of silver to a 10ft dining table. Bliss!'
